BOOTH'S DIARY MUTILATED

Many Believed Judge Holt Guilty of This Vandalism.

BENBUTLER'SBOLDBLUFF

It Was Said that the Publication of the Diary Would Disclose Proofs of Mrs. Surratt's Innocence-Several Pages Cut from the Diary Before It Was Made Public.

A recent reference, apropos of the contest over the alleged forgery of the will of Judge Holt, of Washington, has further interesting light thrown upon it by a copy of the Metropolitan Record and New York Vindicator, bearing date of June 1, 1867, which was accidentally happened across, says "Megargee," in the Philadelphia Times. It was a copperhead publication of the most virgient type, and was still treathing secessionist sentiments two years after the civil war had ended. It contains many things worth reading, but the most instructive is a copy of the diary found on the body of J. Wilkes Booth after the assassin of Abraham Lin-coln had been killed by Boston Corbett's builet. Connected with its first newspaper publication is a story worth the

John A. Bingham, a member of Con gress and afterward United States Minister to Japan, was a member of the military tribunal that tried Mrs. Surratt and the Lincoln assassination conspirators. you all know, a great doubt has always existed as to the guilt of Mrs.

In subsequent debates in Congress Gen. Benjamin F. Butler frequently held this fact over the head of Mr. Bingham, and in a certain memorable debate he boldly pro-claimed that if the contents of a diary which had been found on the dead body of J. Wilkes Booth were ever made public & would disclose the fact that it contained the proof of Mrs. Surratt's innocence, which proof had been infamously suppressed by the government. When Bingham made a movement as though to repel such an accusation Gen. Botler dramatically drew a memorandum book from the breast pocket of his overcoat and held it aloft, but did not utter a word. Bingham instantly sank back in his seat. He naturally supposed that Butler had obtained a copy of a diary such as he had spoken of. As a matter of fact, the memorandum book contained nothing but blank leaves. Wily Ben was playing what a poker player would call a 'bluff hand.'

BOTH'S DIARY PUBLISHED. Andrew Johnson was annoyed by the cirtion. It was generally known that a diary had been found on Booth's body. Secretary of War Stanton had it in his postession, but with his customary malignant secretiveness he refused to let anyone see it. President Johnson finally asserted his prerogative and demanded possession of did not throw any light on the question of Surratt's guilt or innocence. The President's private secretary was W. W. Warden. He was the Washington correnordent of the Baltimore Sun, and, beside, was in the pay of the New York Tribune bareau to supply it with all the information he consistently could.

To him Andrew Johnson intimated that he would not be averse to the publication of Booth's diary, and permitted him to make a copy of it. He brought it after midnight to James Randolph Young, af-terward executive cierk of the United States Senate, but then Washington cor-respondent of the Tribune. It became nored along Newspaper Row that the diary was out, but no one could get the diary was out, but no one could get the floor manager.

DANCING AFTERNOON AND EVENING. Steamer Peutz will leave at 10 a.m., 2 and 5:45 p.m. Returning at 12:15, 5, 8, and 16:30, 2 and 5:45 p.m. Returning at 1, 5, 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Tickets, 25c. Children, 15c., except p.m. Tickets, 25c. Children, 15c., except p.m. Tickets, 25c. Children, 15c., except p.m. 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. trips Saturdays, when they are 10c. to all, E. S. RANDALL, Provise or, pro for I've got a home to go to and I don't have to prowl around until daybreak."

Edwin M. Stanton, in submitting the diary to Andrew Johnson's inspection, wrote in the course of his official communication: "Immediately preceding the entries some pages appeared to have been cut out, but there was nothing indicating what had been written thereon, or whethe anything had been written, nor when or by whom they had been cut out."

BOOK WAS MUTILATED.

In consequence of this fact Ben Butler in sisted that the book had been mutilated. and that the public had a right to know something concerning the pages that had and by whom were these leaves cut out." and he added: "Booth, while hunted for his life through swamps and byways, after the assassination, would bardly have leisure for such amusement; beside, on horseback, with one leg broken, it might be difficult to get a ruler or straight edge by which to trim the leaves as nicely as it is done."

These grave insinuations, however, were repelled by an official statement of Judge Advocate General Holt, in which he said: "The diary purports to be one for 1864, and the leaves cut or torn from it probably contained entries of that year, and were thus destroyed by Booth himself. It is absolutely certain that the diary is in all respects as it was when it came into my hands, and Col. Conger, who was prominent in the pursuit and capture of Booth, after having carefully examined it in my presence on yesterday, declared its condition to be now precisely the same as when he took it from Booth's body after he had been shot, the writing in it being the same, and all which it then contained."

The diary, a copy of which I read in the Vindicator, is very brief. Here it is: "Tiamo, April 13th, 14th, Friday, the Ides-Until today nothing was ever thought of sacrificing to our country's wrongs. For six months we had worked to capture, but our cause being almost lost, something de-cisive and great must be done. But its failure was owing to others who dld not strike for their country with a heart. I struck boldly, and not, as the papers say.

"I walked with a firm step through a thousand of his friends and was stopped, but pushed on. A colonel was at his side. I shouted 'Sic Semper' before I fired. In jumping I broke my leg. I passed all his pickets and rode sixty miles that night, with the bone of my leg tearing the flesh at every jump. I can never repent it, though we hated to kill. Our country owed all our trouble to him, and God simply made me the instrument of his punishment. "The country is not what it was. This forced union is not what I have loved. I care not what becomes of me. I have no desire to outlive my country. This night, before the deed,' I wrote a long article and left it for one of the editors of the National Intelligencer, in which I fully set forth our reasons for our proceedings. He BOOTH'S DESPAIR.

"Friday, 21 .- After being hunted like a dog through swamps, woods, and last night being chased by gunboats till I was forced to return, wet, cold and starving, with every man's hand against me, I am here in despair, and why? For doing what Brutus was honored for; what made Tell a hero, and yet I, for striking down a greater tyrantthan they everknew, am looked apon as a common cutthroat.

"My action was purer than either of theirs. One hoped to be great; the other had not only his country's, but his own wrongs to avenge. I hoped for no gain, I knew no private wrong. I struck for my country, and that alone—a country that groaned beneath this tyranny, and prayed for this end—and yet now behold the cold hand they extend to me. God cannot par-don me if I have done wrong; yet I cannot see my wrong, except in serving a degen-erate people. The little, the very little, I left behind to clear my name the government will not allow to be printed. "So ends all. For my country I have given up all that makes life sweet and holy, brought misery on my family, and am sure there is no pardon in heaven for me since man condemns me so. I have only heard of what has been done, except what I did myself, and it fills me with horror. God, try and forgive me and bless my mother. Tonight I will once more try the river, with the intent to cross, though I have a greater desire than ever to return to Washington and clear my name, which I feel I car dc. I do not repent the blow I struck. I may before my God, but not to man.

"I think I have done well, though I am abandoued with the curse of Cain upon me, when, if the world knew my heart, that one blow would have made me great, though I did not desire greatness. Tonight I try to escape these blood, ounds once more. who can read his fate? God's will be done. I have too great a soul to die like a criminal. Oh, may He-may He spare me that and let me die bravely. I bless the entire world. Have never bated or wronged any one. This last was not a wrong, unless God deems it so, and it is with him to damn or bless me. And for this brave boy with me, who often prays. Yes, before and since, with a true and sincere heart. Was it crime in him? It so, why can he pray the same? I do not wish to shed a drop of blood, but I must fight the course. 'Tis all that's left me.'

JUDGE HOLT CENSURED. Judge Advocate General Holt has always been held in such ill-repute by the many who still think Mrs. Surratt was an innocent woman that they do not hesitate to assert that he was privy to the mutilation of Booth's diary. When Annie Surratt at-tempted to see President Johnson to plead for her mother's life it was Holt who had her denied entrance. Gen. Hancock, who was then in charge of the military in Washington, was so certain that Mrs. Surratt would be reprieved that he had a file of couriers. posted at short intervals all the way from the White House to the old Capitol prison. But those who could have gained the President's forgiving word were denied entrance to his presence, and the dark deed was done whereby a probably innocent woman vas murdered.
